"Jesus in the Driver's Seat"

- Best for kids not old enough to drive •

Description: The main thrust of this object lesson is choosing to make Jesus the Lord of one's life. To begin this lesson, walk the kids out of the classroom, into the parking lot and use your parked vehicle as the object.

Open the hood and all the doors to your vehicle, fill the seats with kids with overflow standing outside watching you. Your job is to point to various parts of the vehicle and ask the kids to tell you how each part contributes to the safe and successful operation of your vehicle.

Now to 'drive' the point of the lesson home, tell your kids that wise people want the very best driver to be at the wheel. When it comes to living our best lives, Jesus is the best driver. He knows the best road to take to bring us safely to Almighty God. He keeps us in the center of the road, He protects us from crazy drivers, He's never lost or late, and He never runs out of gas!

Discussion: The discussion happens at your vehicle, as described above.

Activity Page: Lobster Fold-In

Back in the classroom, hand out copies of the activity page. By folding the page along the designated lines, the true message is revealed: "Hand the wheel of your life over to the Lord!"

Extra Fun: If you have a Windows PC hooked up to a classroom screen, or a Windows laptop for all to view, download and install a simple car race game we've coded, called At The Races. To play, kids form two racing teams, the Silver and the Purple. Each team has a cartoon race car. A race takes only a few seconds so run several races; the team that wins the most races is the overall champ. Instructions are later in this lesson plan...

Find the Hidden Message!

Fold along these two dashed lines
so the arrows line up.

Happily going westbound
through the lovely blue white water, an electric eel officer of the law, a sheriff yodeled loudly to our limousine's safe
onshore scuba diver
that he must undo
ten Mustache
Lobsters. Huh? Absurd!

At The Races!

A fun Windows computer game for your group to play together after the object lesson.

Game Instructions

At the Races features two cars that run very quick drag races somewhere out in an unnamed desert.

The controls are super simple: Press your space bar to race, the escape key to exit the game.

These instructions are listed in the lower left of each screen.

Your class members form two teams, the Silver and the Purple. When ready to race, press the space bar. Be sure your device's volume isn't too loud because these are high-powered race cars after all!

A race lasts only a few seconds. Play as many times as you like, keeping track of how many times each team wins.

Because this game is so simple, virtually no training is required to play. As long as the leader can turn on the computer and click the game icon, you're good to go.

Installation Instructions

At The Races is a Windows program that requires installation. If you have not yet downloaded the installer, get it here: <https://www.clamcentral.com/objectlessons/attheraces.exe>

When you double click the installer's icon, Windows Defender will likely give you a warning that looks like this:

When asked by the installer, choose to place the game icon on your desktop where it can be easily found during your lesson time. To start the game, double click the game icon. You can delete the installer icon.

Lord of the Road

Almost three dozen auto parts that make us think of cool Bible passages.
